IMPROVING THE STATE OF THE WORLD

Every day, new evidence emerges of humanity's harmful impact on the environment, reflected in extreme weather conditions, growing air pollution, declining ocean health, vanishing natural habitats and the "biological annihilation" of wildlife. Compounded by economic inequality and uncertainty, as well as geopolitical tensions, these challenges pose unprecedented risks to economy, society and politics.

Yet the world is not standing still in the wake of disaster. Every day, new citizens' movements are forming that challenge the status quo; new coalitions between business, government and civil society are emerging to transform markets, business models and consumer mindsets; and new scientific breakthroughs and technologies are maturing to change the game on environmental and social collaboration.

The Sustainable Development Impact Summit is the World Economic Forum's annual meeting for integrating and leveraging the best examples of public-private cooperation, systems thinking and Fourth Industrial Revolution technologies to progress the Sustainable Development Agenda.

The United Nations Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) and the Paris Agreement provide the architecture for resolving the world's challenges by fundamentally shifting the way society produces, consumes and operates. Realizing this opportunity requires the cooperation of multiple stakeholders, worldwide.

Taking place during the UN General Assembly, the summit engages the most relevant and influential leaders across business, government, civil society, NGOs and academia to collaborate and address the world's most pressing problems, following four thematic tracks:

- Transforming Markets How to place human and environmental health at the core of market systems and value chains
- Accelerating Climate Action How to cap global warming at 1.5 degrees through innovative partnerships and smart technologies
- Financing Sustainable Development How to mobilize investment for the 2030 Agenda
- Mobilizing Action for Inclusive Societies How to bolster local entrepreneurship and innovation to make growth more equitable
